The 2017 International Champions Cup (ICC) will feature the best slate of teams, match-ups and venues in the tournament's history. The fifth instalment of the ICC will make a grand total of 15 stops from America to Asia, including a new destination in Southeast Asia – Singapore.

Scheduled to take place at the National Stadium on July 25, 27 and 29, the ICC Singapore will feature Chelsea FC, FC Bayern and FC Internazionale in a round-robin three-match tournament. The fixtures in July will mark the first time top flight European teams play each other in Singapore.

The tournament kicks off on Tuesday, 25 July, where the freshly crowned champions of the English Premier League, Chelsea, will face off against their German counterpart, Bayern. The next match on Thursday, 27 July, will see Bayern, 2013 UEFA Champions League winner, take on Inter. The Italian club famously completed the treble with their 2–0 win against Bayern in the 2010 UEFA Champions League Final. The third and final game of the tournament will see Inter take on Chelsea on Saturday, 29 July.

Since launching in 2013, the ICC has hosted matchups at some of the most renowned venues across the world including Michigan Stadium, the Rose Bowl, Hard Rock stadium, Yankee Stadium, Stamford Bridge, Melbourne Cricket Ground and Wembley Stadium. The ICC has featured teams from the world’s most prestigious soccer leagues including the English Premier League, Spanish La Liga and German Bundesliga. In 2015, the ICC expanded to include tournaments in both Australia and China. It has featured matches in Melbourne, Beijing, and Shanghai and has hosted matches in more than 35 cities, 11 countries and four continents.

What the Clubs think about their upcoming matches in Singapore

Tore Andre Flo [Chelsea FC]: It’s going to be very important for Chelsea. First of all, we’re playing against two very good teams – Bayern & Inter. It’s a very important time pre-season, just before the season starts, so players will be trying to impress the manager. It’s also great for the supporters; a good way to reaching the fans all over the world and a chance for them to see their heroes come over and play in their own environment.

Hasan Salihamidžić, [FC Bayern]: Bayern is very happy to be part of the ICC 2017 in Singapore because we’re playing against such great teams. We have a lot of fans here in Asia, and we do hope they’ll come to Singapore from Malaysia, Indonesia, and just support our teams at the National Stadium. The team is really looking forward to being in a great place like Singapore.

Francesco Toldo [FC Internazionale]: Inter is very proud to be here in Singapore and to play against other big teams from the English and German league. It’s going to give a lot of visibility to our Asian supporters, and it’ll be very beneficial from the teams’ point of view because it’ll be an opportunity for Inter to see how prepared the team just before the season starts.
